NEW YORK-ELECTION. In a day or two we shall know the result in the state of New York. The contest commenced on Monday, and continues there, days. At our last accounts, the Whigs were carrying all before them in the city, and the only question beseems to be, which Ward should poll the largest Whig majority.

On the first day, there were more than 1000 more votes polled in the City, than on the first day at the last Municipal election.

The following from the New York Sunday Morning News "shows up the character of Bennett in its true light. There is no remedy for this 'moral nuisance' but that exemplary punishment which the law of libel imposes up on the abusers of the liberty of the press, and the sooner the Court awards it the better for the morality of the press and the public. If the universal execration of all good and honorable men were sufficient to put a quæsus to his vile uses, it would have ceased long since. But notoriously is all the baseness known, desires, and it matters not to him whether he be notoriously infamous, or of good repute."

BLACK MAIL. We should like to know if the opposition of the Herald is not to be bought off before to-morrow morning by some of the Whig candidates? If they do not show a little of that moral and personal submissiveness which lately marked the conduct of Thomas S. Hembury, the player man, let us hope they will be distanced in the coming race. Concession is the only cunctial, and the conciliary principle is the only one to act upon with that hero of the tocsin, Bennett. Inbects in spirit & corrupt in heart discussing every topic with ludicrous absurdity and helpless ignorance, but always in a spirit of systematic falsehood he exercises, as he ought, a great and deserved influence in this community. Profane, presumptuous, and infidel, he has succeeded in propagating the doctrine that guilty convictions of the Deity are neither fertile in public conviction nor personal crime, and that it becomes all good citizens to treat the Christian religion and its professors with becoming indifference. A cold-blooded hypocrite, with charity on his lips and nothing but love of money in his heart, a plausible conspirator against the poor under a pretense of vindicating their privileges, a furious zealot of intolerance, with no feeling but scorn for all forms of belief, soulless, unfeeling, an abomination in the sight of earth and heaven--his paper receives the patronage to which it is so evidently entitled, and bids fair to destroy the last remaining purity and the last remaining virtue of the city. Theft and blood, the robbing of masters and the murder of unfortunate women, the legal tribunals of the city turned into petty trials, where anything is spoken but truth, and anything done but justice, the destruction, in a hundred instances, of the morals and happiness of private life, these have been the inevitable consequences of its circulation, and, were a thunderbolt to fall upon its owner tomorrow, it would be but a signal instance of mercy to this metropolis, and of justice to human nature.

How long this state of things is to last, how long daily libels upon common sense and common decency are to be thrown into a society which profanes a general homage for religion, a general seal for its honor, and a general public observance of its precepts, we know not. Perhaps some ruffian, more vigorous, but not more malignant, than himself, may one day strike him down. As to justice being done up to him by any of its proper representatives, that he is even personal feebleness is their distinguishing trait. We want on the criminal bench a pure philanthropist, but a man of an intellect and prompt in action, one who will not shrink, who will not compromise, who will not stop, till he has crushed libel, slander and infidelity let it take what shape it will. Before such a man had been one month in office, I would see this bustling knave carrying his stripes about with him on Blackwell's Island, or seeking a beggar's bread in another land.

Eric the Missouri Republican. "Eric the King" of the Presidents Sub-servants. We now-a-days scarcely pick up a paper but what we find accounts of some of the Presidents safe depositories of the public monies removing them to Texas or some where else. If the sub-treasury bill had passed, the last speculation in the south would have been the keeping of a ferry to some out of the way place, up the Mississippi, for the runaway depositories of the public money to cross to Texas.

We cut the following from the Vandals, Ill., Clerk Price:

"More depositories now. We learn that the Sheriff of Adams county, in this state, has recently, in a mode Administration removed in itself and family, goods and chattels, and money, supposed of such belonging to the public and anti-slavery cause, it is hardly necessary to say that there is a whole

John C. Calhoun, one of the Maggs, or, I mean, in law, the surplus and in U. S., for Illinois Co., has abandoned right and wrong, very. He反射ed as he said, in his, my words. He would have it ten years ago, a publisher of pedagogic applied for his discharge in the Assistant Court, and described himself as an old friend of the world."

We would again inform Publishers, Correspondents, and all others interested, that by the 1st of the Post Office General Act, any person who sends to the Post Office Department any article, by mail, subjects the same to letter postage.

It is customary, out of courtesy, for agents and publishers of periodicals to write on the covers "with respect of," but the head of the Post Office Department wishes to do away with every thing of a complimentary character and accordingly forbids the exercise of such politeness under a pen by similar to that which would be inflicted in cases where an attempt is made to evade paying postage by writing intelligence on the margins of newspapers, pamphlets &c.

Our friends will therefore do well to bear the decision in mind, lest they should unintentionally subject themselves to heavy fines by adhering to a long established custom."

The MUSICAL LIBRARY for the present month was yesterday received at the Post Office, and deposited in use / with respects of His Excellency B. & H., but we were deprived of the pleasure that we anticipated deriving from its perusal, in consequence of these few unfortunate words, which made it obligatory upon our worthy Postmaster to demand of us one dollar and eighty-six cents and a half cents postage. So that instead of being engaged at that time in examining the Editor's opinion of Animal Magnetism, which subject, by a casual glance at the contents of the Number, we saw was treated of at some length, we are compelled to pen this article whilst the book itself is on its winding sheet to the individuals who had the goodness to forward it here. Providence Jour-

The annexed extract of a letter from an officer on the spot, furnishes the particulars of the capture of Oceola.

FORT MARION, Oct. 21, 1837

I have the gratification to inform you that Asa Yelliot, (Powell) with nearly a dozen war chiefs and seventy warriors, are our prisoners and that I have them now safely under lock and key in the Fort.

You have doubtless, seen by the papers, in Concord, came in some days ago to see his father (Philip) now prisoner, he is a young enterprising chief--the General thinks the Napoleon of the Seminoles. He returned two or three days ago, and Genl Powell would be in the day and brought with him about seventy plan negroes. Last night two ambassades arrived from Powell to see General Hernandez (Genl Jesup would not see any of them) and Genl Powell would be at Fort Peyton, seven miles from here, to-day. Genl H. accordingly proceeded there with about 200 horse, dragoons and Florida volunteers. Shortly after, Genl J. sup. proceeded there alone. Genl H. met Oceola, and they formed a ring and sat down to talk, when Genl J. sent him directions to surround and take them prisoners. There were about eighty of them, and every one with his tribe by his side, (a strong evidence of their hostile intentions.) Genl Hernandez ascertained that they had no intention of surrendering when he gave a signal and they were so instantly surrounded by our horse, about 200 in number that they had not time to raise a rifle. Powell had evinced a good deal of meanness, kept his eyes constantly and quickly wandering about but the moment he found himself a prisoner he was perfectly quiet and calm, and not the slightest symptom of emotion could be seen in his countenance, or indeed in that of any of his warriors.

This got to town after-night and I have just had a short talk with them by order of the Genl and told them why they were made prisoners, remanding them to our long forbearance, and their frequent and base violations of our several treaties that they had even killed one of our citizens within a fortnight, and had contrary to their pledged faith stole our cattle and horses and destroyed our fort &c. Powell declined having done any of these things himself but said he thought the road between his town and this was white and straight, that he intended to come and see what the General had to say to him, and that then they would bring in their negroes and ponies &c &c. They look a good deal depressed and seem to feel that they have fallen in a trap of their own setting. I have but little doubt myself that their real intentions were to rescue Philip if they could find us weak and unprepared &c. to take an attack on the 2d, hoping probably that the negroes would assist them. We have with Powell all the war clubs, all the instruments of the war, except three, Sam Jones, Alligator, and one other whose name I forget. A runner will be sent to Micapony and Jumper and I doubt not they will immediately come in. We shall then have only the Micasukies and the Seminoles to contend with, and I think we may look forward with a reasonable hope to a speedy termination of the war.

It is said that all the warriors taken are Micasukies of this I have not been able to assure myself, as it was late when they came in. It is also, that there is no doubt that Powell had some hostile intention, but then too is their capture doubly important. (N.Y. American)

JUSTICE IN IRELAND. The following pleasant foretale of the piquant disclosures which will take place before the Committee appointed to investigate the Election Petition is gleaned from the Dublin Police Court Reports. In the course of examining some petty squabble between two ladies, the following evidence was given.

"Oh, your worship," remarked the defendant's daughter, "you don't know that Mrs Harwood can do, mild as she looks." She was married to a sleek young man, who had near Paris dorm, and he died about a year ago. Well, when the last election came, she dressed herself up in her husband's clothes, put on that wig, pointing to that which has already been described, and putting the certificate in her pocket, she voted for O'Connell and Buttton" (Shouts of laughter followed this announcement, incredible as it appeared.)

Mrs Harwood, abandoning all reserve, joined cordially in the laugh, and turning to the tale-teller, exclaimed with exultation, "Well, if nothing else is true, what you said now is the

Some gentlemen inquired if she was really serious.

Mrs Harwood "Indeed I am, and if I live I will vote again for O'Connell and Buttton."

TRIAL FOR MURDER. The trial of John S. Pitcom for the murder of Isaac H. Russell, took place at Concord, N. H., on Tuesday and Wednesday last. The circumstances of the murder, which took place at Hopkinton in April last, were fully related in the papers published at that period. The facts of the prisoner's committing the murder was not denied, and the defense set up was insanity. There were a great many witnesses examined to this point, several of whom were from this region. The prisoner was defended by Ichabod Bartlett and Charles H. Pease, and the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" by reason of insanity, without leaving their seats. Boston Daily Advertiser.

There is ten years ago, a publisher of pedagogic applied for his discharge in the Assistant Court, and described himself as an old friend of the world."

[From the London and Westminster Review.] LIFE IN THE BRITISH PENAL COLONIES, NEW SOUTH WALES.

"The acquisition of large fortunes has established an esprit de corps amongst the whole class of emancipated convicts, a spirit fostered by ill-gotten wealth and maintained and supported by yearly increasing numbers, which has manifested itself in a degree of arrogance and presumption, sufficient, on the one hand, to demonstrate that we are in the hands of such individuals as are not evidence of a thorough reformation, and directly calculated on the other, to alienate from the minds of convicts in the Colony all sense of criminality."

And Mr. M. Arthur, a proprietor in New South Wales, and whose authority is in every respect with regard to matters of fact, of the greatest value, says

"The convict of the present day, assigned perhaps upon his arrival, as a domestic servant or mechanic in Sydney, is at once exposed to the temptation which originally took him into crime, and is placed in an atmosphere, from the influence of which he can scarcely escape without becoming more and more confirmed in depravity. He is an example immediately before him of men formerly in the same condition with himself, wallowing in incontinence, and possessed of wealth and power generally by dishonest means which they continue, in many instances, still to augment, by keeping grog-shops and gambling houses by receiving stolen goods, and by other nefarious practices. This is the general conduct of the class of emancipated convicts who acquire property as well as of some unprincipled adventurers in the class of the emigrants."

Some of the emancipated class are a amazingly wealthy. One man who was transported about the end of the last century, for stealing geese on the moors of Yorkshire, is now supposed to be in possession of an annual revenue of between forty and fifty thousand pounds.

Sydney is a town admirably adapted to be the metropolis of the community of criminals, according to the account of its first police magistrate.

"Sydney now covers an area of more than 2000 acres, and contains a population probably of 20,000 souls. This population includes a great proportion of prisoners of the Crown, of both sexes, persons whose passions are violent and who have not been accustomed to control and yet, for the most part, having no lawful means of gratifying them. It includes also a number of incorrigible bad characters, who on obtaining their freedom will not apply their lives to any honest mode of living, but endeavor to support themselves in idleness and debauchery by plunder, but who cannot be drawn from their habits--by the same process that vagabonds are disposed of at home. There is more immorality in Sydney than in any other town of the same population in the United States. It contains 219 public houses, and there are so many places where spirits are sold without license, that he feels incompetent to guess at the number. There is no town which affords so much facility for eluding the vigilance of the police. The unoccupied bush, near and within the town itself, will afford shelter to the offender, and hide him from pursuit, he may steal or hire a boat, and in a few minutes place himself opposite to the police station, and in some manner overcome them."

NEWS FROM DOWNINGVILLE. E

DIVORCED. On the 25th September Uncle Sam from his forty odd wives the Pet Banks the quarrel arose about who should keep the keys of the people's money-box.

MARRIED. On the 20th September, Martin Van Buren's Office. Husbands to the people's Money. Rumor says that the parties had been too intimate for some time before the union, and that the marriage has been got up to cover their shame.

DIED. During all the month of July last left the State Col. J. F. H. Clapham's Consistency. On this melancholy occasion, the singular prodigy was discovered that the defunct had two Sons one a Bank Ghost the other a Anti-Bank Ghost, the latter took flight just before the late election towards Columbus and the Northern part of the State, and gibbered away as ghosts will do against a National Bank, the former stole, crept crawled and sneaked along through Illinois, Indiana, Jefferson, Adair and other River countries gibbering in favor of a National Bank. It is said that each ghost haggard in the other ghostly habitation that nobody disputes either of them.

COOKERS. At the latest date Congress was engaged in efforts to elect members of Congress for the State of Mississippi. Messrs. Claiborne and Gholson were candidates, the result is doubtful.

Since the above was written intelligence has been received that the American Congress, in the excess of their generosity have determined to save this State the trouble of electing Congressmen for themselves. Whether Mississippi will appreciate this act of disinterested benevolence, is very questionable. We opine that she will choose her own delegates, and they will be men on whom she can rely with implicit confidence. No blustering time serving demagogues.

"Why don't you get your ears or puffed?" cried a lusty market gardener's cartman to a long eared Milesian, "who was trudging along at a swinging pace with his load on his head, the other day in a garden, "they are a precious sight too long for a man." "Are they?" said Pat, with a grunt, looking his assistant full in the face "then, by my soul, yours are too short for an ass."

SONG. Give me an eye, a swimming eye, To meet my ardent glances A sunny eye to gaze upon When pleasure in it dances Give me an eye to mingle beams When mirth and joy have bound me; Give me an eye to mingle tears When sorrow's clouds are round me

Give me a cheek, a soft, soft cheek, When those blushing over it, So bright, so pure, so angel-like, Twere sinless to adore it

Give me a cheek to press to mine With that calm, holy feeling, That lulls the soul as music does, When o'er the senses stealing

Give me a lip a balmy lip, Sweet Smiles around it wreathing A dewy lip, carnation-like, -- Of love and fondness breaking

Give me a lip to kiss when all, Of few, or none care斯 me A full red lip to dream upon, A seraph lip to bless me

Give me a hand, a snow white hand, To tremble when I press it A fairy hand to hold in mine, A little hand to bleed it

Give me a hand to kiss and breathe, O'er at my soul a devotion A hand to hold and press mine too, With deep unfeigned emotion

Give me a heart, a gentle heart, With warm affections beating A heart to flutter with delight When tip with tip is me king

Give me a heart to call my own, To cheer my path when dreary A pure, a guiltless, constant heart, To lean upon when weary

The NEW ENGLAND is 31 years old, 175 feet long, and 507 tons burthen. During the past winter she has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired, and the proprietors have spared neither pains nor expense to render her in all respects worthy of public confidence. That she is the fastest boat on the eastern coast is now universally admitted, and her superiority as a sea-boat has been fully proved.

Travelers from the eastern part of Maine to Boston will find this route in many respects preferable to any other. The mail steamer from Bangor and Belfast arrives before the departure of the boat, and the boat arrives at Gardner after return passages from three to six hours before the departure of the eastern stages; thus affording travelers an opportunity of spending a few hours at Gardner, Hallowell and Augusta.
